

A reader learns a little every day. Careful reading helps us notice new ideas and understand familiar words in a different way. We can ask a question, look for evidence, and discuss what we have learned with a friend. Every good question can lead to another discovery.